Welcome Comment

Morning everyone! Fingers crossed for a day of sunshine and hopefully you can all get outside and do something lovely – if not, a Go Noodle inside to get you moving! I hope you enjoy today's tasks,

Miss McGowan 😊

English Task

Today our focus is again on chapters 37 – 39. All of our questions this morning have an inference focus. Remember to use your text for evidence and record your answers in full sentences.

- 1.) Why does Zero throw up?
- 2.) What does Stanley mean when he says he's ordered Zero's hot fudge sundae?
- 3.) How do you think Stanley felt when he found water?
- 4.) Why does Stanley tell Zero that the onion is a hot fudge sundae?

Maths Task

This morning I would like you to focus on your addition and subtractions skills with some rather large numbers! You will need to show your working out and then find the answers to the cross-number questions. Read the questions carefully and make sure that you are putting the right answer in the right place! Good luck and have fun! 😊

Foundation Subject Task

There is no denying that the past few months have been rather strange and possibly challenging at times. Today I would love for you to have a go at creating your own poetry based on this very unique experience. Attached on our school website or here you will find a resource that will give you some ideas, hints and tips on what you could write about or just some ideas about where to start. Once you have written them, think about how you could decorate them. If you want to share your poems, then I would love to see them. 😊

Any Further Guidance

Super work Year 5, well done. Please make sure you have sent Mr Salisbury an email to let him know you're ok. He is keeping me brilliantly up to date with how you all are and I am making sure that I am seeing your work too. You are a fabulous bunch,

Take care, Miss McGowan 😊
